Radford Social News

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]

RADFORD, VA., October 31.—Ex-Governor J. Hoge Tyler and Mrs. Tyler have issued cards to the marriage of their daughter, Belle Norwood, to Mr. Frank Percy McConnell, of Fort Smith, Ark., on Monday evening, November 16th, at the Central Presbyterian Church, East Radford. The wedding will be a beautiful affair, and is looked forward to with much interest. Miss Tyler being much beloved in this section.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Ruby Roberts to Mr. Fred Cannaway, of Washington, was made at a Halloween ghost party given Saturday evening by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Roberts, to eighteen of her girl friends, besides her guests, Misses Rena Sue Kidd and Eugenia Akers, of Bristol, and Misses Helen Preston and Lucy Thacker, of Salem, who will form a merry house party for the next week.

The parlor and hall were draped in white and decorated with jack-o'-lanterns, and the guests, who came attired in ghost costumes, were received in silence by the house ghosts, who later broke the spell by the recital of ghost stories. At 10 o'clock a ghost dowered with the gift of prophecy, entered and told the fortunes of the various guests. That of the hostess told of a lover who would soon sail with her as his bride to the orange blossoms of the Sunny South, leaving her companions to their fate.

As the flutter of this interesting prophecy died away, the entrance of a fairy on the scene resulted in the transformation of the ghosts into bright-faced maidens, in evening attire, very much alive, as was evinced upon their entrance to the dining-room, decorated with autumn leaves and fruit, where a delicious supper was served.

Halloween games, music and recitations filled the swift-flying hours until the carriage was announced at the door to take the girls to their several homes.

Miss Roberts is a strikingly handsome and attractive young girl, the daughter of Mr. Arthur Roberts, depot agent and yardmaster at East Radford. Mr. Cannaway is a fine and promising young business man of Washington, who formerly lived here, and a brother of Mrs. Frank Roberts, of East Radford. The wedding will take place about midwinter.

S.S.S. CURES RHEUMATISM

This is just a short talk on Rheumatism, pointing out its causes and some of the reasons why so many fail to find a cure for this painful, and often far-reaching trouble.

No other disease is more persistent and discouraging than Rheumatism. Those persons in whose blood this painful ailment has taken root, often grow disheartened, and sometimes conclude there is no permanent cure. Patiently they have blistered and rubbed their aching joints and muscles with liniments, oils, etc., and faithfully taken potash and other mineral salts, only to find when the treatment is left off the disease returns, and usually with increased severity.

Rheumatism is due to an excess of uric acid, an irritating, inflammatory accumulation, which gets into the circulation because of weak kidneys, constipation, indigestion, and other physical irregularities which are usually regarded as of no importance. Nothing applied externally can ever reach this trouble, while potash and like mineral medicines really add to the acidity of the blood, and this vital fluid, therefore, continually grows more acid, sour and weaker.

Rheumatism can never be cured until the blood is purified and built up. S. S. S. thoroughly cleanses and renovates the circulation by neutralizing the acids and expelling the foreign matter from the system. It strengthens and invigorates the blood so that instead of a weak, sour stream, constantly depositing acid and corrosive matter in the muscles, joints and bones, the entire body is nourished by rich, healthful blood, which completely and permanently cures Rheumatism. S. S. S. contains no potash, alkali, or any other harmful mineral, but is made entirely of blood-purifying and healing roots, herbs and barks which enrich and freshen the circulation while curing Rheumatism. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice furnished free to all who write.

REPEATED FAILURES, THEN RELIEF.

Mr. Wm. L. Hill, of Winston, N.C., at one time traveling salesman, and well known in North and South Carolina and Virginia, says: "Two years ago my blood was in a wretched condition, and in addition to other bodily ailments I suffered severely from Rheumatism. After repeated failures to secure relief from the use of other remedies I began S. S. S., and it acted like a charm. The rheumatic pains left and my general health was built up as well. I have the highest opinion of S. S. S., for it is the only medicine that has ever cured me."

RHEUMATISM ALL GONE.

Mrs. Ida M. Palmer, of 125 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N.Y., writes as follows: "I wish you to know what great benefit I have received from the use of S. S. S. I have been afflicted with Rheumatism for twenty years, sometimes being entirely laid up by it and always lame in some part of my body. It grew worse until it was misery to attempt to walk at all; my right knee was nearly twice its natural size and was drawn up considerably shorter than the other one. A friend advised me to take S. S. S., which I commenced. I had tried so many things that I must say that I had very little faith that it would do me any good, but I was willing to try anything that promised relief. Before I had been using it long I was greatly relieved, and continuing the medicine I soon found that I was entirely cured. The lameness and soreness all left. I can exercise, move or bend my leg as well as any one and I have never known what Rheumatism was since. I am 65 years old and feel deeply grateful to S. S. S."

...Famous Colonial Estates...

BLANDFIELD, No. 24. Though history unfolds a time-stained scroll all along the Rappahannock River, at no point is the memory of the past more poignant and beautiful than the shores which were included in the Blandfield estate in America's youngest days. The patrician of this magnificent plantation was William Beverley, grandson of Robert Beverley, who emigrated to Virginia in 1663. Born in 1698, William Beverley was the son of Robert Beverley and Ursula Byrd, and notwithstanding the vast inheritance he gained from them, took up still more lands in Essex county, calling this plantation Blandfield, in honor of his wife, Elizabeth Bland. The 4,000 acres were bought by him in 1730 from the original owners, and in 1780 he built the present substantial manor house, which has suffered few changes, though its years have been many; once only, in 1852, has it been even slightly remodeled.

The large mansion, true of all the grandest of that era, is backed on either side by smaller wings, very long arcades, or "covered ways," connecting the three portions. Architecturally, Blandfield presents many particularly fine and unusual features, the most noticeable being the great portico and handsome detailed cornice. The interior could tell a tale of historic moments and pitiful suffering, could the staunch old walls but speak for the manor house was the central point of Federal vandalism when the Union gunboats were lying in the Rappahannock during the Civil War. Though the Revolution had passed it kindly, it remained for this later war to outrage the feelings of master and mansion.

Lawless and untutored soldiers searched right and left about the beautiful old estate, leaving when their ships sailed away, the dwelling a pathetic wreck of its former self. Hand-made wainscoting and paneling were thoughtlessly ripped from the walls and burned when too bulky to be carried off. Superb portraits from the brushes of famous artists were irreverently cut from their rightful places upon the walls of the ancestral home and thrown among the great quantity of rare furniture, of which sixteen wagonloads were seized. One of these portraits, that of Robert Beverley II, hangs now in the Congressional Library, in Washington.

The large central hallway, 70 by 30 feet, branches into two narrower, from which stairways ascend to the upper floor of the mansion, containing twenty-four huge rooms. Choice bits of old mahogany and family silver are still to be seen, though the majority fell into alien hands in the siege of 1862.

The famous library at Blandfield was begun by Robert Beverley, the earliest of the family, and continued to the extent of 500 volumes, which comprise one of the most valuable collections of books in the country. A five-acre lawn surrounds the manor house, and is dotted with ancient sycamores, as well as other forest trees, while the old-fashioned garden, with precise box-lined flower-beds, is a mass of bright-colored fragrance from early springtime till frostbitten winter months.

On the death of William Beverley, Blandfield passed to his eldest son, Robert, the second of the name and line in Virginia. The son of the latter, another Robert, next inherited the estate, which went then to James Bradshaw Beverley, who in turn left it to Robert Beverley, V., the father of the present proprietor.

Not once has the long linked chain of family inheritance been broken, and in the attic of the historic mansion are old chests and hampers filled with family papers to interest as keenly the casual stranger as the student antiquarian—a priceless heritage, fragrant with the hopes, the dreams, the lives and loves of eight generations of one name and blood.

Surely it is wise to recur occasionally to the sentiments clinging to these old estates, just as it is to study the character of those at whose hands they sprang into being. The contemplation of colonial country seats and their colorful masters should be within the grasp and affections of every true Virginian, for though their past is ours only by loving retrospection, their future belongs to America by reverent anticipation of their days that are to come.
